SCHOOL CENTENNIAL.

New York Public School System 100 Years Ago.

MEMORIAL TO BE HELD TUESDAY.

Remarkable Growth of the Idea Born in 1795—First Appropriation $100,000—Many Millions Are Now Expended Annually on the Schools of the State—First Free Schools in America.

New York, April 7.—One hundred years ago next Tuesday Governor George Clinton affixed his signature to an act appropriating $100,000 for the support of the common schools of the state of New York. The centenary of this event, which is considered as the inauguration of the magnificent public school system of which New York is so justly proud, is to be celebrated by the school children of the state with appropriate exercises on Tuesday, and in accordance with the suggestion of the superintendent of public instruction the occasion will be utilized in the schools as a means of impressing the pupils with patriotic lessons as well as with an appreciative sense of the value of education, and of the systematic assistance given the schools by the state.

Although the act of 1895 was an important landmark in the history of New York's educational system, and as such eminently worthy of commemoration, it was as a matter of fact neither the first nor the last permanent move in the direction of state aid to schools by the legislature of New York. For the following brief outline of the history of state education our readers are indebted to H. E. Keyes, chief clerk of the Brooklyn board of education.

As early as 1879 the legislature passed a law directing the surveyor-general to set apart certain public lands to be apportioned among the different counties, which were to be sold or leased "for the benefit of the gospel and the public schools of the state." Most of this land was long ago disposed of and the money therefrom disbursed, but even to the present day some of the lots are still yielding revenue for the support of schools in certain counties and municipalities in the state.

The act of 1795 provided for the appropriation of $100,000 yearly for five years, but for some reason no appropriations were made after the third year, and the act therefore became inoperative. For some years thereafter no systematic aid was extended to the public schools of the state, but in 1895 an act was passed setting apart 500,000 acres of land for school purposes.

No portion of the income was to be distributed until the gross revenue amounted to $50,000, a result which did not occur until 1815. Then $48,000 was distributed to the schools of the state, and the money derived from the sales of these lands still forms the nucleus of the present common school fund. The present state organization of the school system dates from 1812, though it has been several times remodeled.

Our forefathers of a century ago, who found $100,000 rather an over-liberal appropriation for school purposes, would have been astonished at the dimensions to which the present school system has grown. There are now in the state nearly 1,200,000 pupils enrolled in the public schools; there are 32,476 teachers, whose aggregate salaries amount to more than $12,000,000, and the amount of money spent by the state annually upon its free school system will this year pass the twenty-million mark. To such a giant growth has the system which was so tentatively fostered by early legislation attained.

An interesting historical fact which has been unearthed by the Brooklyn board of education in connection with the approaching centennial is the discovery that the first free public school supported entirely by taxation which was ever established in this country was located in Brooklyn.

It was in 1691, when the Dutch still possessed the colony of New Amsterdam, when hot-headed Peter Stuyvesant was governor of the colony and when Brooklyn was spelt Broeklyn, that this little educational institution was started. It was established in connection with the Dutch church and stood near the corner of Red Hook Lane and Fulton street, just around the corner from the present headquarters of the board of education, and was first opened on the 4th of July.

The first schoolmaster was Carl Debovoise, a French Huguenot emigrant, whose duties, as outlined by the municipal ordinance, seem to have been multifarious. He was required to act as teacher of the school, court messenger and server of processes, to conduct certain services in the Dutch church, to lead the choir on Sundays, to ring the bell for public worship, dig the graves for the settlement's dead, and perform "other occasional duties." For these duties he was to be reimbursed by the proceeds of the school tax levy of 150 guilders a year, a sum which would amount to about $20 in our present currency, to which Governor Stuyvesant handsomely added fifty guilders from the colony's treasury. In the next year, 1692, another school was established in the parish of Boerwyk, now known as Bushwick.

These are said to have been the first free schools in America. In New England schools were early established, but the pupils in all cases had to pay at least a small tuition fee toward their support. These Brooklyn schools were supported entirely from the tax levy, and all children in the parish might attend them without charge.

The celebrations in the various schools will be according to arrangements made by the various principals. In most of them programmes consisting of musical selections, patriotic recitations and papers on historical subjects will be rendered, and the occasion will be made a memorable one to all the pupils.

The children of the Society of the Sons of New York residing in Chicago celebrated the day in advance with characteristic western promptitude, according to a Chicago dispatch, on Friday noon, when 100 strokes were rung upon the great Columbian Liberty bell, which is still in Chicago. The children themselves struck the salute upon the bell.

The day will be by no means neglected in New York, and it is Superintendent of Schools Jasper's intention to remind the principles of the various schools of the anniversary, and to suggest that they recognize it in an appropriate manner. This will be left much to the individual choice, and in the majority of instances will doubtless consist of recitations and essays.

There is every prospect, also, that the event will be fittingly recognized throughout the state, as a circular letter urging the importance of the anniversary has been issued by State Superintendent-elect Charles R. Skinner, and extensively distributed to school boards throughout the state.

$175,000,000 PAID IN

The New Gigantic Telephone Company to Cut Rates on 'Phones—Standard to Meet the Bill.

New York, April 7.—The New Standard Telephone Company, which, with its subsidiary companies, has $175,000,000 capital, will open office in a few days in the Postal Telegraph Company's building, on Broadway, and it is announced will begin business this summer. Tests of the Standard telephones have been made over resistances equivalent to 3,000 miles, and it is said New Yorkers will, when the wires are constructed, be able to ring up their friends in San Francisco and talk to them. The price of telephones will be $3 a month for offices and $2 a month for residences. Thurlow Weed Barnes, of No. 68 Broad street, is president of the parent concern.

Territory is to be sub-divided and more than fifty subsidiary allied corporations have been chartered for this country and Europe. The president of the local company in Philadelphia is Richard W. Clay, president of the Solicitors' Loan and Trust Company, and C. W. Bergner, the brewer, and H. A. Berwind, the large coal operator, are members of the Pennsylvania board. General Felix Agnew, owner of the Baltimore American is in the Maryland board. The president of the company in Washington is Lomon G. Hine, who made a large fortune through his connection with the Mergenthaler Linotype machine. The president of the company in New England is John W. Candler, of Boston. Colonel A. K. Conger, president of the glass trust of Akron, Ohio, is president of the Ohio-Indiana company. Ex-Governor Fairbanks, of Vermont, and Mr. Hunt, of Portland, Me., represent that portion of New England. Pabst, the brewer, of Milwaukee, represents Wisconsin. George A. Madell, president of the Union Trust Company, is president of the local company in St. Louis.

Among the directors of the New York State Company are Charles T. Armstrong, the sugar importer, ship owner and capitalist, of this city; Lowell M. Palmer, president of the Brooklyn Cooperative Company, manufacturers of barrels for the sugar trust; William Dick, capitalist and director of the American Sugar Refining Company, Brooklyn; John Dunn, Jr., president of the Syracuse National Bank; Alva W. Palmer, wholesale clothing, Syracuse; Gustavus E. Strauss, lace importer, New York; Anthony M. Brady, capitalist, Albany; Henry Siebert, capitalist, New York; Gustavus E. Jahn, president rice mills, etc., New Orleans and New York; Henry D. McCord, capitalist, etc., New York; George Hutchins, etc., New York. Many capitalists in different parts of the country are interested, among them Craig Lippincott, president of the J. B. Lippincott Company, of Philadelphia; Alexander Montgomery, capitalist, of Cincinnati; J. M. Kuty, capitalist, of Cincinnati; A. Aulton Hall, of Hall Safe and Lock Company, Cincinnati; Gotlob Hartweg, capitalist, Cincinnati; E. H. Bourne, cashier Union National Bank and owner of the Bourne Nut and Bolt Manufacturing, Cleveland, Ohio; J. W. Simons, banker, Fort Wayne, Ind.; John Laitre, capitalist, Minneapolis; O. W. Shipman, Detroit; George H. Scripps, treasurer Detroit Evening News Company.

The company is especially strong in Chicago, where among other men of equal standing, the following are on the board of directors: Gen. James S. Clarkson, William J. Campbell, John S. Rannels, R. W. Hunt, William P. Ketcham, T. A. Griffin, L. H. Hole, Montgomery Ward, John S. Hannan, Mr. G. H. Hibbes, W. W. Tracy, Mr. John Goodnow.

United States Senator Jones, of Nevada, is one of the board of directors of the parent company.

Mr. Searls, of the Sugar Trust, has sold his stock, but his nephew, Ennis M. Searls, and his son-in-law, Whitport Murray Tuttle, are associated with the syndicate.

Many of the electrical appliances are the inventions of W. R. Cole, a Michigan electrician.

SATURDAY'S NEWS IN BRIEF.

The total defalcation of the late Judge Hale, of Foxcroft, Me., is $137,696.92. It is said wholesale arrests will be made at Watrous, N. J., for fraudulent registration before next Tuesday's election.

Charles McKay, a member of the Rochester (N. Y.) paid fire department, committed suicide at Charlotte, by hanging.

The schedule of the Walter A. Wood harvester company was filed at St. Paul. It shows assets of $9,750,788, and liabilities of $1,108,679.

Many of the gold coins turned out by the Carson (Nevada) mint, especially $5 pieces, is said to have more alloy than the law allows.

The United States minister to Mexico, Matt Ransom, is quite sick at the City of Mexico, with a sore throat and a carbuncle on his neck and another on his elbow.

Daniel Steinman, seventy-four years old, committed suicide at Paterson, N. J., by blowing off the top of his head with a shotgun. Steinman had been ill for some time.

Crawford, the bank robber, pleaded guilty yesterday at Adel, Ia., to one indictment for robbery and two for assault with intent to kill, and was given a sentence of twenty-two years.

The principal funds of the insurance branch of the Knights of Pythias were in the City National Bank of Fort

Texas, which is closed. The board of control, however, announced that drafts on the fund will be met.

James H. Sumner, an alleged highly respected citizen of Buncombe county, N. C., is charged with shooting and killing his cousin, Ernest Sumner, eighteen years old, and fatally wounding Charles West, also aged eighteen. It was the result of a family feud.

SHILOH'S BATTLE FIELD.

Thousands of the Blue and Gray Met There Saturday.

SHILOH, TENN., April 7.—A cloudless sky greeted the thousands of blue and gray who assembled at Shiloh's little church at the thirty-third anniversary of that bloody battle. A new frame memorial church stands where the little log church stood on that memorable day, when 80,000 men strove for the mastery. The grand stand erected for the occasion was occupied by the nation's flag. "Welcome to the blue and the gray," was painted on the front of the stand, while within, on a blue background, were the memorable words of President Grant, "Let us have peace." There were present yesterday Generals Prentiss and Buell, Joe Wheeler and A. P. Stewart.

The exercises opened with a short speech by General Prentiss, the hero of "the hornet's nest," the hottest part of the battle. Generals Wheeler and Stewart, and Captain Paine, who had been assigned to the duty by a meeting of the Confederate veterans, welcomed the boys in blue. Generals Buell and Prentiss entertained the veterans with reminiscences of the battle.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison, of Bolan, Worth county, Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders, read an item in his paper about a prominent German citizen of Ft. Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words: "It cured me right up."

He also says: "A neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured me. He got a bottle and it cured them up in a week. 50-cent bottles for sale by Chase, R. Goetze, Will W. Irwin, John Klari, Wm. E. KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

Here's the Peddler, with washing-powder. "Prizes," too, for any women brave enough to use it. Reckless—that's a truer word for her, when you think of all the harm that cheap, inferior washing-powders can do.

When you consider the ruined clothes, paint, etc., that you're risking, wouldn't it seem cheaper to buy these trifling "prizes," for yourself, if you want them? Pearl-line isn't peddled—doesn't give any prizes. It is a prize in itself. You can save more money with Pearl-line, by reason of its absolute safety, than with any cheap washing-powder. By the way, did you ever get a really good thing from a peddler?

Pearline is manufactured only by James Pyle, New York.
